My ideas is:- When we open a tap and we forgot to turn off the tap the water will be wasted instead of wasting water when the water is full we could fix a sensor for the tap so that when the water is full in the bucket the tap would sense that the bucket is full of water and it could automatically turn off. so that the water would not be wasted. that is my idea.

We get sweat a lot when we play in the hot sun or do some work. we could use a fan which we can make a fan we could put it on our neck and we could get cool and fresh air. I will draw a diagram of it
